IMPORTANT: Investment involves risks, including the loss of principal. Investors should refer to the ETF's Prospectus and the Product Key Facts Statement for further details, including the product features and risk factors. Past performance is not indicative of future performance and the ETF's NAV per unit may rise as well as fall. Investors should not only base on this marketing material alone to make investment decisions. Investors should note:

- The CSOP FTSE China A50 ETF ("ETF") aims to provide investment results that, before fees and expenses, closely correspond to the performance of FTSE China A50 Index, which is an index consisting of the top 50 A-Share companies by market capitalization listed on the Shanghai Stock Exchange or the Shenzhen Stock Exchange. Investors may not get back part of or the entire amount they invest.
- The ETF is one of the first RMB physical A-share exchange traded funds issued outside PRC to invest directly in the A-share market which is inherently a market with restricted access. Investing solely in China market may also subject the ETF to emerging market risk (such as greater economic, political, tax, foreign exchange, regulatory, volatility and liquidity risks) and concentration risk.
- Investors who bought units on the HKD counter may be subject to currency exchange risk as the assets of the ETF are denominated in RMB.
- The liquidity and trading price of the ETF RMB traded units may be adversely affected by the limited availability of RMB outside the PRC and the restrictions on the conversion between foreign currency and RMB.
- There are risks and uncertainties associated with the current Chinese tax laws applicable to investments made by an RQFII ETF. Provisions of PRC taxes may not be sufficient or may even be excessive. Any shortfall between the reserves and actual tax liabilities may have to be covered by the ETF's assets and may adversely affect the ETF's asset value.
- The ETF is subject to tracking error risks due to factors such as fees and expenses of the ETF and the liquidity of the market, imperfect correlation of return and other factors such as the representative sampling strategy being used and investing in collective investment scheme under exceptional circumstances.
- The units of the ETF are traded on the SEHK. Their prices on the SEHK are based on secondary market trading factors and may deviate significantly from the net asset value of the ETF and may trade at a substantial premium or discount to its NAV.
- The Manager may, at its discretion, pay dividends out of capital. Payment of dividends out of capital or effectively out of the capital amounts to a return or withdrawal of part of an investor's original investment or from any capital gains attributable to that original investment. Any distributions involving payment of dividends out of the capital or effectively out of the capital of the ETF may result in an immediate reduction of the NAV per Unit.

Investment Objective
