

IMPORTANT:

- Mirae Asset Horizons CSI 300 ETF (the "Fund") is a physical exchange traded fund and seeks to provide investment result that, before fees and expenses, closely corresponds to the performance of the CSI 300 Index (the "Underlying Index"). The Fund is an investment fund. There is no guarantee of the repayment of principal. Therefore your investment in the Fund may suffer losses.
- The Fund invests in the People's Republic of China (the "PRC")'s domestic securities market through the status as a Renminbi Qualified Foreign Institutional Investor ("RQFII") of Mirae Asset Global Investments (Hong Kong) Limited (the "Manager") and will utilise the Manager's RQFII quota which is subject to the Manager's allocation across different public fund products under its management from time to time and is limited and may be used up. As such, the Fund will not have exclusive use of a specified amount of RQFII quota. In the event the Manager is unable to obtain or allocate sufficient RQFII quota to the Fund, the Manager may suspend creations of the units of the Fund ("Units"). In such event the trading price of a Unit will be at a significant premium to the net asset value ("NAV") per Unit.
- The Fund is not "actively managed", therefore when there is a decline in the Underlying Index, the Fund will also decrease in value. The Manager will not adopt any temporary defensive positions against any market downturn. Investors may lose part or all of their investment.
- The Fund is subject to concentration risk as a result of tracking the performance of a single geographical region (i.e. the PRC). The Fund may likely be more volatile than a broad-based fund as it is more susceptible to fluctuations in value of the Underlying Index resulting from adverse conditions in the PRC.
- The RQFII policy and rules are new and there may be uncertainty to its implementation and such policy and rules are subject to change. The uncertainty and change of the laws and regulations in the PRC (including the RQFII policy and rules) may adversely impact the Fund and such changes may also have potential retrospective effect. Repatriations by RQFIIs in respect of an investment fund such as the Fund conducted in Renminbi ("RMB") are permitted daily and are not subject to any lock-up periods or prior approval. There is no assurance, however, that PRC rules and regulations will not change or that repatriation restrictions will not be imposed in the future.
- The Fund has a portfolio investing in companies whose operations are primarily in the PRC and therefore is subject to emerging market risks such as risks associated with uncertainty concerning PRC laws and regulations and government policies. Generally, investment in emerging markets such as the PRC are subject to a greater risk of loss than investing in a developed market due to greater political, economic and taxation uncertainty and risks linked to volatility, market liquidity, foreign exchange, legal and regulatory risks. The PRC imposes restrictions on foreign ownership or holdings of A-Shares. At worst, the Fund may not be able to achieve its investment objective.
- There are risks and uncertainties associated with the current PRC tax laws, regulations and practice in respect of capital gains realised via RQFII quota on investments in the PRC (which may have retrospective effect). Although Caishui [2014] No.79 states that QFIIs and RQFIIs without a place of business or establishment ("PE") in the PRC, or that have a PE in the PRC but their gains derived from investments in A-Shares are not connected to such PE, will be temporarily exempt from corporate income tax on capital gains derived from investments in A-Shares effective from 17 November 2014, the tax exemption granted to QFIIs and RQFIIs by the relevant tax PRC authorities is temporary. As such, as and when the PRC tax authorities announce the expiry date of the exemption, the Fund may in future need to make provision to reflect taxes payable, which may have a substantial negative impact on the NAV of the Fund. If actual tax is collected by the State Administration of Taxation of the PRC and the Fund is required to make payments reflecting tax liabilities for which no provision has been made, the Fund's NAV may be adversely affected, as the Fund will ultimately have to bear the full amount of tax liabilities. In this case, the tax liabilities will only impact Units in issue at the relevant time, and the then existing unitholders and subsequent unitholders will be disadvantaged as such unitholders will bear, through the Fund, a disproportionately higher amount of tax liabilities as compared to that borne at the time of investment in the Fund.

- Generally, retail investors can only buy or sell the Units on the Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (the "HKEx"). The trading price of the Units on the HKEx is driven by market factors such as demand and supply of the Units. Therefore, the Units may trade at a substantial premium or discount to their NAV.
- The market prices of underlying securities listed on the Shenzhen Stock Exchange and Shanghai Stock Exchange may not be available during part or all of the HKEx trading sessions due to trading hour differences which may result in the Fund's trading price deviating away from NAV (i.e. the level of premium or discount of the Unit price to its NAV may increase).
- If there is a suspension of the inter-counter transfer of the Units between the HKD counter and the RMB counter for any reason, unitholders will only be able to trade their Units in the relevant counter on the HKEx. The market price on the HKEx of the Units traded in HKD and of the Units traded in RMB may deviate significantly due to different factors such as market liquidity, supply and demand in each counter and the exchange rate between the RMB and the HKD (in both the onshore and the offshore markets). As such investors may pay more or receive less when buying or selling the Units traded in HKD on the HKEx than in respect of the Units traded in RMB and vice versa. Investors without RMB accounts may buy and sell HKD traded Units only. Such investors will not be able to buy or sell RMB traded Units and should note that distributions are made in RMB only. As such, investors may suffer a foreign exchange loss and incur foreign exchange associated fees and charges to receive their dividend. Not all brokers and CCASS participants may be familiar with and able to buy the Units in one counter and to sell the Units in the other or to carry out inter-counter transfers of the Units or to trade both counters at the same time. This may inhibit or delay an investor dealing in both HKD traded Units and RMB traded Units and may mean an investor can only trade in one currency.
- The Fund is denominated in RMB. RMB is currently not freely convertible and is subject to exchange controls and restrictions. Non-RMB based investors in the Units are therefore exposed to foreign exchange risk as a result of fluctuations in the RMB exchange rate against their base currencies. There is no guarantee that the value of RMB against the investors' base currencies (for example HKD) will not depreciate.
- In the event of any default of either a PRC broker or the PRC Custodian (directly or through its delegate) in the execution or settlement of any transaction or in the transfer of any funds or securities in the PRC, the Fund may encounter delays in recovering its assets which may in turn impact the NAV.
- Due to fees and expenses of the Fund, liquidity of the market, foreign exchange costs, and changes to the regulatory policies, the Fund's return may deviate from that of the Underlying Index.
- Investment involves risk. Investors may lose part or all of their investment. Investors should not base on this document alone to make investment decisions.
